WILLIAM REVELL MOODY

vision with helpful counsel and encouragement. And the son proved faithful to his father's friends. As vacancies came to the Board of Trustees with the passing of the year W. R. Moody found men of similar wisdom and devotion to fill them.

Mr. Moody's activities in what may be fittingly called the Northfield work were twofold, the care of Northfield Seminary and Mount Hermon School on one hand, and the development of Northfield as a religious center, chiefly through the Northfield Summer Conferences, on the other hand. During his administration both schools grew to such a degree in student registration, teaching force, buildings, budget needs, and endowment, that incorporation in the name of "The Northfield Schools" became necessary. Of this organization Mr. Moody became the president. To carry such a heavy financial load of solicitation of gifts and securing of bequests year after year called for talent which few educational administrators have possessed in such large degree. Success was his in large measure. When illness suddenly came upon him, and his personal administration of his trust had to be passed on to others, it was at once seen how able, wise and successful his administration had been. Hundreds of Seminary girls and Hermon boys acknowledge that they owe him a debt of gratitude for continuing with such loyalty and unparing effort the wise and generous educational policies of his father, the founder of the two schools.

In the development of the Northfield Conference Mr. Moody worked in a field of religious activity bounded only by the limits of Christendom. He personally directed and presided at the General Conference in August. Here again he remained loyal to the basic principles established by his father in making up the platform of speakers. Experimental religious isms never found voice. The son showed as keen a detection of religious quackery as the father had possessed. From the pulpits and seminaries of America and the British Isles the most accomplished and authoritative preachers and teachers welcomed his invitation to Northfield. Thousands of delegates every year found that spiritual uplift and inspiration which came to be known the world over as the Northfield Spirit. Under the guidance of the son Northfield continued to be the place of pilgrimage which the father by his altogether winsome gospel had made it to be. Only eternity can measure the helpful religious movements and the innumerable life stories of Christian service at home and abroad which have been inspired by these great religious gatherings at Northfield.

The illness which caused the passing of active school administration to other hands did not sever Mr. Moody's care of the conferences. Here was a part of the Northfield work so vital to the Church of Christ in the whole world that Mr. Moody's personal direction must be maintained as long as his strength permitted, with relief from many of the smaller details. To this work he gave his utmost care and foresight. Mr. Moody's acquaintance and friendship in the British Isles were quite as great as in his native land. The companion of his father in his youth and early manhood in several missions and journeys overseas, he came to know many of the leaders of British thought and leadership in religion, politics, and society.

During the World War he served as a Y worker in Camp Devens, Massachusetts, and as a Red Cross worker in the Walter Reed Hospital in Washington. He was one of the group of American religious magazine editors who were taken through Great Britain and France in 1918. His patriotism was fervent and his service was gladly rendered.

William Revell Moody was born in Chicago in 1869. He was graduated from Mount Hermon School in 1887, and from Yale in 1891. In 1894 he married Miss Mary Whittle, daughter of Major D. W. Whittle, long a colleague of his father in evangelistic work. He is survived by his wife, always his devoted co-worker in the care of the schools and the conferences, and by four daughters, Mrs. Arthur W. Packard, Mrs. Constance Chase, Mrs. Frank Smith, all of New York City, and Miss Beatrice Hanson Moody of East Northfield, and two grandsons, David Bruce Packard and William Moody Packard. He also leaves a sister, Mrs. Arthur P. Pitt of East Northfield; a brother, Paul Dwight Moody, President of Middlebury College; and several nieces, grand-nieces and grand-nephews.

A Fair Question

Poet's Corner

ON MY WAY

Somebody cares for me today And that's how I bear my pain.
There are times when I slip downward, Then this truth comes back again.

This morning the clouds were very dark And I felt I could not go on But one whom I love smiled sweetly And I found that the clouds were gone.

Again and again my poor old heart Is heavy and full of fear.
Then I count my blessings one by one,
And think of my friends most dear.

Those whom I love are worried too And some days forget to smile.
I wonder if I am helping them?
If I remember the second mile?

I ask my Heavenly Father To guide me on my way, Then worry and fret and just forget.

get.
That His promise is mine today.
I look from my western window And behold the glorious Sun It is going to rest so beautifully With its days work faithfully done.

I close my heart to the sordid things And peace and love fill my mind.
When I think of the folks who love me,
Of the beautiful ties that bind.
I forget myself in the thinking Of the things I can do and say To make other lives the brighter As they travel their burdened way.

The peace of sleep comes o'er me, I gain new strength for the morrow For the love of God and the love of friends Shall win over worry and sorrow.

EDITORIAL

Someone has said that the most hateful sin among men is ingratitude and the "aircaster" in the Albany Times Union prints a whole sermon upon the subject. He says in part—

"People who lack gratitude, lack love. They're very much alike, gratitude and love. In fact, it's hard to imagine one loving a God or a human being to whom one cannot be grateful."

Well the "aircaster" may be right but much of the ingratitude in the world is simply due to misunderstanding and a lack of human appreciation of each others ability in the world of endeavor.
Let's be human.

"If the NRA is a success, it will be recorded in history as the most radical change ever made in the social order, in a peaceable manner. What a mark of progress that will be!"

The program of the NRA is thoroughly Christian. It emphasizes service and justice and requires a sacrifice. This plan is the best solution for our present-day problems; it preserves the best of individualism and adds the best of socialism. It is a noble experiment which let us hope succeeds and is made permanent."

So writes Mr. Charles T. Brown from Bangor to the Press and the Editor of the Herald is quite in accord with his sentiments.

Inflation, if, as and when it comes, probably won't take the form of printing press money. If the Administration has its way, it will be done through an extension of bank credit. According to the U.
S. Daily, the policy, in a nutshell, is that the government is going to see the banks through and the banks in turn must put out credit in a much bigger way than they have been.

Banks are filled with idle money but the banks' position is a difficult one—they've got to put money where they can get it when needed, and most applications for loans are based on projects which, from that standpoint, are pretty dubious and not acceptable to the inflexible banking laws and regulations which require liquid collateral rather than character and past business standing as the basis of a loan.

Respect The Blue Eagle

Now that compliance Boards of the NRA have been named and approved in the various districts of the country the work of receiving, hearing and acting upon all complaints can be started. All complaints must be in writing and signed and they must state the known facts contained in the complaints. Such complaints are confidential and the signers name is not used nor the matter publicized.
All those who have signed under the member Blue Eagle should comply fully with the provisions of the blanket code or of the special code approved for their business or industry. A word to the wise will now be sufficient.

In the Northfield district all complaints of violations or of unfair trade practices should be sent to Chairman W. F. Hoehn or to Secretary S. E. Walker.

Shear Nonsense

Male Straphanger: "Madam, you are standing on my foot." Female Ditto: "I beg your pardon. I thought it belonged to the man sitting down."—Montreal Gazette.

Little Sister: "What is that a picture of?" "That's the Statue of Liberty. You can always tell her, 'cause she has an ice cream cone in her hand."—Montreal Star.

"The umbrella I bought from you is not much good."
"How is that, sir?"
"I left it in a restaurant yesterday, and it was still there today."—Scranton Times.

A farmer became the father of twins and on hearing the news he was so delighted that he hurried to the nearest telegraph office and sent this telegram to his sister-in-law:
"Twins today. More tomorrow."
—Montreal Star.

"She calls her his 'Queen of the Links.'"
"Ah, their courtship began on the golf course, I presume."
"No—far from it. She sells 'wienies' at a hot-dog stand."

Reporter: Have any of your childhood hopes been realized?
Millionaire: Yes, when my mother used to comb my hair I always wished that I didn't have any.—Story Stories.

"Jerry ain't much of a farmer, he ain't."
"Yes, he keeps foolin' 'round with his pigs, but he don't mess with hisillin' station."

Poet's Corner

HEREIN IS LOVE

Herein is love; to lift another's cross,
To give away the gold and keep the dross, To trample into dust the worm of self,
To crowd its clamoring on the soul's back shelf, Nor ever let it dare upraise its head, Deny its every tail till it lies dead.

Herein is love; to strip the shoulders bare,
If need be that a frailer one may wear A mantle to protect it from the storm,
To bear the frost king's breath, so one be warm;
To crush the tears it would be sweet to shed,
And smile, so others may have joy instead.

Herein is love; to daily sacrifice The hope that to the bosom closest lies, Mutley to bear reproach and suffer wrong, Nor lift the voice to show where both belong, Nay, now nor tell it e'en to God above—Herein is love, indeed, herein is love.

AUTUMN

There's a mighty forest fire sweeping our New England hills, And each tree is a burning bush of God.
There's a majesty, a glory, touching every crested ridge, And a purple haze above the rock bound sod.

Every glowing amber ember, turns to scarlet over night, While the meadows sleep beneath a drowsy moon.
From knee deep within the marshes, where the brown capped cat tails stand Sounds the eerie, lonely, cackle of a loon.

There's a winy exaltation in each fruity orchard breeze, Where the yellow leaves slip slowly to the ground.
While our happy wild musicians of the summer days wing past;
As all Nature moves in beauty, outward bound.

There's a melancholy moaning at the corners of the house And a minor note is echoed in my heart.
It's the tune of sad remembering, pot pourri of dreams.
Shall I see the dead leaves falling when we part?

OCTOBER

The trees are clothed in scarlet and in gold;
The clouds are lowly as celestial gates;
And Nature, like some merry monk of old
The Missol of the year illuminates!

The bitter-sweet its timid flower displays,
The far-off fire uplift contentious spires;
And on the hills the blue mysterious haze Hangs like the ghost of ancient tribal fires!

With dauntless wing and with creature cries,
The predatory hawk his flight achieves;
And where the scythe - shorn meadow follow lies,
The swollen brook is biethares with leaves!

There seems a spell-a-magic-in the air,
That has a glow and warmth of rapture here;
Beauty and wonder linger everywhere,
And every bush is touched with grace Divine!

My door-yard Elm is like a heirophone,
Swaying in meditation to and fro; Versed in the lore of all the creek extent,
And myth and legend of the long ago!

And, even as often that ancient tree Wherein hung Xerxes chains of shining gold
My Maple blossoms all exultantly, And shines like that the monarch loved of old!

Like gentle facts—dead before their time—
The feathered choirsters have passed with Spring; But where the scarlet wood-bine loves to climb
The jay and wood-pecker delight to sing,

Students Treat Trustees

An interesting innovation was introduced at The Northfield Schools during the Trustees semi-annual visit last Saturday when the Board members and their wives were entertained at luncheon at the various Halls on the Seminary Campus. Trustees and students alike seemed to appreciate the opportunity for becoming better acquainted. The Halls entertaining and their guests were:
Kovell, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred W.
Fry, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Perry, Hillside, Mr. and Mrs. Albert E.
Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick E. Newton.

Gould, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J.
Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Richard C.
Morse, Mr. Jarvis Cromwell, Weston, Mr. and Mrs. A. G.
Moody, Miss Harriet Broad, Mr.
Garret S. Boetsma.
Marquand, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Speer, Mr. Edwin M. Bulkeley, Miss Lucy S. Curtis.
Moore, Mr. and Mrs. John Stewart Baker, Mr. P. Blair Lee.
East, Dr. and Mrs. Richard M.
Smith, Mr. John L. Grandin, Mr.
Edwin S. Sunderland.

New Postage Stamp

A new special five cent postage stamp in honor of Gen. Thaddeus Kosciusko in recognition of his services to the American cause during the Revolutionary War and in connection with the 150th anniversary of the naturalization of the Polish general as an American citizen will be placed on sale at the various postoffices early next week.

The stamp is of the regulation size, printed in blue. Surrounding the stamp is a narrow panel ruled diagonally, bordered by single inner line with double lines along the outer margin. The likeness of Gen. Kosciusko, modeled from a statue in Lafayette Park, Washington, D. C., appears at the right center with the top of the pedestal base resting in the lower right corner. In a horizontal line along the upper left portion of the stamp are the words "U. S. Postage" in dark Roman. Immediately below this inscription are the words
"Five Cents."

Good Bank Record

Every national bank in the First Federal Reserve District—which comprises Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island and Connecticut (except Fairfield County)—had by Sept. 20 either been reopened or had had its plan acted upon by the reorganization division of the Comptroller's Office, J. F. T.
O'Connor, comptroller of the currency.

There were ninety-two banks in this district which failed to receive license at the conclusion of the Bank Holiday. Of these, sixty-four have been reopened; twenty-five are working on approval reorganization plans, and three have been recommended for receiverships.
The record made in the rehabilitation of national banks in the First Federal Reserve District is one of the best for any part of the country.

Amelia Smiled Pleasantly

A large Franklin car was rolling through Orange recently at rather a fast speed and Chief of Police John Plunkett stopped it to warn the woman operator that West Main Street was under construction and cars should be shown in approaching it. The operator was all smiles and thanked the chief very politely. Incidents of this kind occur every day and this was nothing unusual in itself except that the driver happened to be Amelia Earhart Putnam, the first woman ever to make a solo flight over the Atlantic. The chief recognized the famous woman and might have added that her photographs didn't do her justice. Mrs.
Putnam was on her way to Northfield where she opened the Northfield Seminary lecture course by a lecture.—Orange Enterprise Journal.

License Revoked

As a result of an automobile collision in East Northfield last September 10th the right to drive an automobile has been suspended of Allen Barnard, R. F. D. No.
2, Shelburne Falls, who is unlicensed and whom Registrar Morgan T. Ryan says "operated improperly. In connection with the same accident the following decision is also made.

License suspended, vehicle operated by unlicensed person, but in her control, operated improperly: C. Elizabeth Barnard, R. F.
D. No. 2, Shelburne Falls.
